PHILADELPHIA MEDICAL TIMES, VOL. 7: A BI-WEEKLY JOURNAL OF MEDICAL AND SURGICAL SCIENCE; OCTOBER 28, 1876 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)DOWNLOAD PDF

Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Philadelphia Medical Times, Vol. 7: A Bi-Weekly Journal of Medical and Surgical Science; October 28, 1876 Forced to meet these facts, -one of the New York dailies asserts that, although there are fewer deaths in this city, there is vastly more sickness than in the great metropolis. As is well put by one of our city newspapers, the lesser number of deaths in the greater number of cases proves how much better the Philadelphia doctors are than those of New York. Although we feel this superiority, truth requires us to acknowledge that our New York friends have magnified the number of our cases. The newspaper accounts of the frightful risk to be run in seeing the Centennial have had a great effect; not in diminishing attendance at the great exhibition, but rather in alarming those who congregate to it. The desire to see it is so deep-rooted that the multitude comes, although it may feel like an army going to the conflict. The precautions taken by some of the fearful ones are very amusing. One party we know of brought a cask of the notorious Croton water and persisted in drinking it at the table-d'hôte and elsewhere, although by standing it had become fairly putrid. Another family, staying fifteen miles away from the city, in a hilly district full of Springs of the best water, receive daily their beloved and trusted Croton, bottled at their residence in New York. Ephraim truly is joined to his idols. The hotel keepers, wine-merchants, etc., owe a debt of gratitude to the New York press, as the extra demand for claret at the table helps in no mean...
