Reviews

The book is great and fantastic. It is written in straightforward words and phrases rather than difficult to understand. You won't really feel monotony at any time of your respective time (that's what catalogues are for regarding should you question me).

Mr. Hall has indicated that the great difficulty is in the state of mind that has grown up, which seems to form almost an insurmountable barrier between the managements and the men. This can be broken down, however, if the problem is tackled in a large way. The men themselves realize the seriousness of the situation, although they indicate that the first move in improving conditions must come from the other side. They say quite frankly, If the management shows it has confidence in us we will meet it more than half way. VICE-PRESIDENT JONES--Mr. C. H. Stein, General Manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. BY MR. C. H. STEIN, GENERAL MANAGER, C. R. R. OF N. J. I feel if I attempted to say what has been running through my mind during the course of the addresses of the preceding speakers, it would consume more time than I am justified in absorbing at this late hour. This has been a very interesting subject, so interesting, indeed, that I feel there is room for much more discussion than has already taken place. I would like to see an opportunity given to members of the Club and others who might be invited, for a further discussion of this very burning subject. I would, therefore, like to suggest that this subject be continued on the docket, and that it be discussed again on another occasion. At that time I...
