Excerpt from The Electoral Crisis: An Address Delivered in the United Presbyterian Church, Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday, October 25, 1864 For so shall I address you this morning, and for the reason that while I am speaking from the altar of my sacred ministrations, I could wish to be regarded for once, not in the high character of the minister of God, but in that simply of an American citizen, - it is scarcely possible to over-estimate the importance of the campaign through which we are now passing. It is, in my humble view, most unlike any of those through which we have already passed - campaigns which have proved to be but the mere quadrennial epochs of our national life. This bids fair to become the very crisis of our history - the turning point, for weal or for woe, of our national existence. Never were there issues so vast - never were there responsibilities so gravely devolved upon any people as are those that are devolved upon our people to-day. It would be impossible for me here, as...

Reviews

These kinds of publication is the greatest pdf available. Better than never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

-- Lorena Streich

It becomes an awesome pdf that I have actually read through. It really is full of knowledge and wisdom You may like how the writer compose this book.
