Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from On Secondary Spectra and the Conditions Under Which They May Be Produced Most metallic spectra are greatly altered by the addition of capacity, it is true, but the changes produced are by no means comparable with the change from primary to secondary, while metallic spectra, by every test known, are already secondary spectra before adding capacity. They are series spectra, Show the Zeeman effect and the displacement effect due to pressure, and the new lines brought in by added capacity are of the same (secondary) character. That so many metallic vapors exhibit banded absorption Spectra would Seem to indicate that metals may have primary spectra as well as nonmetals, but if so they are to be sought in the electrodeless discharge and cathode luminescence where the excitation is very feeble, rather than in the condenser discharge. Nor would the oxyhydrogen flame, banded spectra of the metals studied by Hartley and Ramage be comparable with primary spectra. In these spectra the lines of the series spectra Simply become the heads of the bands in the flame spectra, while the lines of a true secondary spectrum appear to have no relation to the bands of the corresponding primary. Another notable distinction between the spectra of electro-negative and electro-positive elements is that the former, both primary and secondary, are remarkably invariant, while it is difficult to obtain the spectrum of a metal twice alike. Why Should a condenser discharge produce a secondary spectrum? The oscillation frequency of a condenser is so much less than the frequency of collision of an electron in a gas at 1 mm pressure that an electron must collide a great number of times before the impelling force is reversed....
