Yes, Minnchen, the pastor has invited all the boys and girls who work in the quarry, and are as old as I am. That s capital, Jack, answered Minnchen; we are to start at three o clock from the place where the band plays, under the oak trees. Jack, you had better come and dine here, called out Frau Edelmann, from the kitchen window, who had overheard the conversation, which passed between the children, then you and Minnchen can go together. The day was glorious, and Pastor Brauns was waiting with his wife to receive his little guests under the oak trees. They formed themselves into a long line, and walked quietly through the Kadau valley, past the quarries, and came at last to the Radau waterfall. Pastor Brauns did not linger at the little restaurant which supplies coffee and provisions to the many visitors who come here to while away an hour or more in the beautiful summer evenings beneath the shady trees which overhang the road side, and commands a pretty view of the waterfall that comes dashing and splashing down the mountain side. He conducted the children to a sloping green bank opposite to it, up through a little bit of pine forest, and then he bade them sit down on the ground, for he wanted to say a few words to them. There was a little bustle before the children were seated; each of them wanted to sit beside his or...
