Brand New Book. Excerpt from Harvard College, Class of 1907: Secretary s Fifth Report; June, 1922 It is an interesting report, and as a human document ranks high, for it tells the story of the large success or par tial success of many men in the Class, and the story of some who think they have been failures. But in many cases we strike the note of courage to struggle against odds with the conviction that the battle must ultimately turn in their favor, and it fills us with admiration for the staunch spirit which prevails. Moreover, the report illustrates again that merely ma terial success is not sought by all and that to live one s life as one wishes and to secure the contentment which comes from well-doing and the satisfaction of having performed one s job well, is something which purely material gains can not offset. Herein follow many interesting biographies, more than the ordinary report contains. Some men have hesitated to say anything about themselves under the mis taken notion that what they have done is of no interest to the Class, and has not been of importance to anybody but themselves. They fail to realize that to 1907 men all 1907 doings are of interest. Others have hesitated because they feel that they have not done anything worth while, and for them we only hope that they will ultimately see that in our large family our family affairs on the occasion of a Class anniversary are interesting purely as family affairs. The War service performed by 1907 men and set forth somewhat inadequately in their lives...
