Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Glories of Old Nassau: A History of the College of New Jersey, Done Into Easy Verse As in those days when, lately out of school, We strutted like the gobbler near his hen, And much admired ourselves as College Men? And shall we not with shock of mimic war Rage round the placid Cannon as of yore - Or, bosoms swelling neath the Sophomore stripe, Breathe incense from the unaccustomed pipe - Or, basking on the greensward neath the elm As stately Juniors long to take the helm - Or, reverend Seniors, in th omniscient year, Our valuable counsel volunteer - Or once again in gossipy communion, Foregather round the lamp post of Reunion, Or, four years passed since we were infant preps, Assemble joyously to hold the Steps? Then, with a sigh for those old merry times, On to the theme that animates our rhymes! New days, new ways - and though we re out of date, And get the merry Ha-ha when we prate Of by-gone things, our sons are on the...
