Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from I See Them All Burial of A child Bury deep that gentle form, deep bury that form Way down in the black earth there, the cold black earth The sealer of air and dusty breeze Out of man s touch, do not touch the coffin Do not touch it before gone down there out of sight, In the cool caverns of thought cool thoughts breed. Poignant sad child scream in the blight Of a life not lived of a path not walked in the night, Forget, forget that ever life was there, cool life of day That limbs were loose there, heart free and easy, supple Tender in the germ of him cut down, bled and begot On a happy day singing, singing praises out of light. Tell me not that this was all for the best That there is a power above, guider and distant That I should not weep, that I should not weep, That all there is of life, love is gone dear What consolation is there to say, to say Ring his praises in our night, in our night. Look, A Scenic View Look, a scenic view A picture postcard made real A dash of inevitability Of water tumbling over rock The sound of cataract Filigree light through trellis of sky Making hallow the sanctuary of leaving light Leavening motion of earth s heaving breast Time pontificating impress of own personality.
