The increasing claims of new sciences to a place in the college curriculum render necessary a careful selection of matter and the most direct methods in the old. The author s aim has been to present each subject as concisely as a clear and rigorous treatment would allow. The First Part embraces an outline of those fundamental principles of the science that are usually required for admission to a college or scientific school. The subjects of Equivalent Equations and Equivalent Systems of Equations are presented more fully than others. Until these subjects are more scientifically understood by the average student, it will be found profitable to review at least this portion of the First Part.
