Medical science depends on the development of other natural sciences. The combination of basic medical education and clinical practice. medical educators and the general clinical medicine workers years concern has not been a good solution. Despite the formation of a relatively independent of the basic and clinical medicine combining education system in our country. but the basis of medical textbooks rely mainly on the basis of subject experts prepared teaching program is divided into basic teaching and clinical teaching two relatively independent stages. so that the foundation medicine and clinical medicine teaching in terms of time and taught easy disjointed. difficult to reflect the systemic and integrity of the theoretical knowledge of the various disciplines. and is detrimental to fully grasp the knowledge of medical science. Our population in a developing country. due to historical reasons. the development of medicine and medical education and developed countries there is still a certain gap between the basic medical research. a big gap between the clinical development with foreign. and even some The side also has the advantage. but most of the drugs. diagnostic instruments and reagents used in our clinical from abroad. our clinicians engaged in the interpretation of the essence of...
