Code Name Alphabet 32 (Paperback)

By George M. James

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Very few Westerners understand how far advanced South Africa was and still is in military technology. For instance, the entire US MRAP vehicle program is based on 1975 South African technology. The list is endless and superficially dealt with in the GMJ Intelligence Briefings. In Code Name Alphabet 32, I introduce the reader to yet another South African miracle of technology, the air-to-ground surface-to-surface Mokopa anti-tank missile. The Mokopa outperforms the better-known US Hellfire in every possible way which is described in this book - it is faster, more accurate, penetrates 50 more armour and can be fitted with a variety of warheads making it an outstanding force multiplier. This missile is sold to the enemies of NATO and the US. Historically, it was created when the US under Bill Clinton refused to sell the Hellfire to South Africa. I made sure to take you through the tactical doctrine of firing a Mokopa in real-world conditions, to show you how it is done. We look at surgical strike capability, something that NATO claim to have but don't. Intelligence reports show...
