Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Farmer s Magazine, Vol. 15: January to June, 1859 Prudent, in these days of rapid returns, of artificial food, of early maturity, and improved breeds, to grow esh and bone by one process and fat by another; it never was desirable to make two bites of a cherry; we do not grow straw by one process and corn by another and I believe, nationally, we are wrong. I believe it is against the interest of the king dom, and of the agricultural community, to mature a beast in four years, which could with greater profit be matured in two years. It is only in accordance with reason that bune, muscle, and fat manufacturing should be proceeded with at the same time. We now mature our sheep very young, even killing them as hoggets at 12 or 15 months of age, and they attain to a prodigious weight and size. Early maturity in sheep grazing is justly considered one of our modern improvements; and why, in practice, is not the principle applicable to beasts as well as sheep? I have fattened animals of different ages; and I have found that beasts fattened when young make the best return, and pay the largest amount; they not only swell, but they grow into money, and fatten at the same time. With animals which I have purchased from Buckinghamshire as calves, and which I have commenced to fatten at 18 months of age, and sold at two years old, they have averaged 50 stone of l4lbs. Each beast; when, had I given them another year in the straw yard and at pasture, they would not have exceeded, when fattened, 60 stones in...
