Excerpt from Laboratory Guide of Industrial Chemistry The factory is surely no less fertile a department of this industrial era than the railroad or the foundry. For in the manufacturing plant there is more need of techno-practical (if such a term may be used) trained men than in any other branch of industry. Unquestionably it is necessary to have organization for the manipulation of power, machinery, and labor, so as to obtain the maximum of production with the minimum of expenditure or depreciation of plant. But in addition, it is highly essential that we understand the chemical principles upon which these industries are based. The object of this book, therefore, is to acquaint the student of chemistry with a few commercial processes, by introducing practical methods of handling materials on a large scale; the care and use of machinery; the cost of raw material; transportation; wage system; the handling of men and shop discipline.
