A four-month-old horse is separated from her mother. In the middle of the night, thousands of miles away in Connecticut, Locket the burro hears a tiny voice. I want my mommy, she hears over and over again. There s a mommy here who will take care of you, Locket tells her. Weeks later, the foal, Beatrice, arrives at Locket s Meadow, sullen and angry. Although rescued from death in a slaughterhouse, all she can think about is how much she misses her mother and Canada s green meadows. David and Kathleen, the farm owners, try to help her but she grows angrier every day. She doesn t look like my mommy, Beatrice cries to Locket when the burro tells her Kathleen will be her new mother. But if you give her a chance . . ., Locket says. I would give her a chance, says another, deeper voice. If only I could find my way there, I would give her a chance. Ernie, another foal, is days away from slaughter.
