The former epoch began with the arrival, in June, 1856, of the first steamboat freighted for Sioux City, which, that year, grew to be a town of 400 inhabitants; it may be said to close with the completion of the first railroad, in March, 1868. All that goes before - and it would make a chapter of romantic story - relates to the time of pure adventure in the northwest, rather than to its substantial development; it includes the day of exploration, of the French voyager, of the trader and the trapper. The first account of the visit of white men to Woodbury County is that of the famous exploring expedition of Lewis and Clark, in 1804. This is immortalized by the names they gave to localities, and one spot is sacred as the last resting place of the first of their number who fell during the expedition. On the 20th of August, 1804, Sergt. Charles Floyd died and was buried by his comrades on a high bluff overlooking the Missouri River. The grave is still to be seen on the bluff which bears his name, and his memory has a more enduring record in the Floyd River, which, passing...
