Coventry sewage, gave the following results: --These results show that the defecation of the sewage was very complete as regards the precipitation of suspended matters, and that a large proportion of the soluble organic matter had also been removed. The percentage composition of the dry precipitate was as follows: --From From London sewage. Coventry sewage The organic matter contained nitrogen equal to ammonia---1 41 0.91 In these cases, as in the last with Blyth s superphosphate of magnesia, an excess of sulphuric acid and lime was used to precipitate the whole of the phosphoric acid, and hence the earthy carbonates are in great excess; but no doubt this can be avoided in practice on a large scale, as is shown by the comparatively small proportion of lime (13,09 per cent.) in the precipitate analysed by Dr. Voelcker. This process has not yet been tried on a large scale, and, therefore, we are unable to speak of its actual commercial value, but. it is evidently very promising; for if two tons of the natural phosphate of alumina, costing about 7, will yield from four to five tons of manure, with from 33 to 39 per cent, of what may really be called soluble phosphate of lime, there is every prospect of its being remunerative; besides which, it is unquestionably very effective in its defalcating power, for it immediately removes from the most foetid sewage its turbidity, its colour, and its offensive odour; and though, as...
