Excerpt from A Southern Philo-Semite: Josephus Daniels of North Carolina During his ambassadorial stay in Mexico, Daniels diary-letters show that he did everything he could to mitigate the lot of the European refugee Jews there. In shirt-sleeve Diplomat, Daniels Mexican memoir, he entitled his short chapter on Jewish affairs The Scattered Nation.<sup>44</sup> He used that title advisedly, for it was the title of the celebrated philo-semitic oration by Zebulon B. Vance of North Carolina. The original Scattered Nation was written by Vance, the state's folk hero and Civil War Governor, in 1891 as a protest against the vicious Russian pogroms of that year. Daniels knew the Vance story intimately; he knew of Vance's many Jewish friends and of his likening The Scattered Nation to the invigorating and distinct Gulf Stream. He knew also the story of May, 1865, when a troop of Federal cavalry arrested the Governor at his Statesville home preparatory to delivering him at the Salisbury railroad station thirty-five miles away and sending him on to prison in Washington. There was not a horse or rig to be spared in town. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
