Pursuant to a legislative requirement, GAO provided information on the Department of Defense's process for developing the prices the Defense Business Operations Fund will charge its customers, focusing on: (1) the reasons the Fund's prices have increased; (2) the reasons the Fund continues to experience annual losses; and (3) whether the Fund's financial reports are sufficiently accurate to assist it in developing reasonable prices. GAO found that: (1) the Fund's primary goal is to oversee the management of funds needed to carry out critical DOD business operations and establish prices that recover the total costs of providing goods and services to its customers; (2) since the Fund's inception in 1992, its prices have increased significantly because of DOD efforts to charge customers for the Fund's total operating costs and policies that require the Fund to recover prior-year losses by increasing subsequent-year prices; (3) the Fund plans to recover about 1.7 billion in 1995 and has had three consecutive operating losses; (4) the DOD practice of increasing prices to cover prior-year losses is inappropriate because it distorts the annual net operating...

Reviews

Basically no terms to clarify. It is actually written in basic terms rather than confusing. I found out this ebook from my dad and I suggested this book to find out.
