Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Devil of Names, and Other Lectures and Sermons At an old-fashioned inn with a pendulous Sign, Once graced with the head of The King of the Kine, But innocent now of the slightest design, Save calling low people to spurious wine While the villagers, drinking and playing all fours, And cracking small jokes, with vociferous roars, Were talking of horses, and hunting and - scores Of similar topics a bar-room adores, But which rigid morality greatly deplores, Till as they grew high in their bacchanal revels, They fell to discoursing of witches and devils A neat little rap, Just the ghost of a tap, That would scarcely have wakened a ?ea from his nap, Not at all in its Sound like your Rochester knocking, Where asses in herds are diurnally ?ocking But twice as mysterious, and vastly more shocking, Was heard at the door by the people within, Who stopped in a moment their clamorous din, And ceased in a trice from their jokes and their gin When who Should appear, But an odd-looking stranger somewhat in the sear, (he seemed at least in his sixtieth year), And he limped in a manner exceedingly queer, With trousers uncommonly wide in the rear, And his nose was turned up with a comical sneer, And he had in his eye a most villainous leer, Quite enough to make anyone tremble with fear Whence he came, And what was his name.
