Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Six Years of Politics, 1910-1916: Containing Speeches on Finance, Foreign Affairs, Home Rule, and Women s Suffrage These six years have been selected for the narrative of this volume, not because they represent the only political experience of the author, but because they embrace his most active political life, and also because of the hope that, as they refer to actions and events the most important in British history and that of the world, they are the more likely to interest the greatest number of people. The speeches are principally taken from Hansard s Official Report of Parliamentary Debates, and are there fore a report of the actual words spoken in the House of Commons, The author is conscious of their many shortcomings, but has deemed it better to present the speeches in their original form, rather than to alter and correct them in accordance with the style and literary taste of some of those who may perhaps do him the honour to read them.
