Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Dedicatory and Opening Ceremonies of the World s Columbian Exposition: Historical and Descriptive as Authorized by Board of Control To The student of the world s progress, no question is more interesting than the efforts of one race, or one nation to avail itself of the advancement made by other countries in art, science and invention. The artisan, the mechanic or the artist, who has the opportunity to study by personal inspection the works of other lands, can gain valuable knowledge. The statesmen of Europe in the seventeenth century first made a study of this great problem, and laid the foundation for the National and International Expositions, which culminated in the World s Columbian Exposition of 1893. During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the countries of Europe were wont to send abroad their most eminent scholars, artists and mechanics, to study the secrets of manufacture and art held by other nations. International brotherhood had not yet been placed on that broad plane which makes it the highest pleasure to impart knowledge to others. It was not until the emigration of...
