Excerpt from An Introductory Lecture to a Course on Surgery, in the Indiana Medical College: Session 1847-8 Nor is the study of earth alone, or the things upon it, to limi your knowledge. Astronomy should claim a portion of your time, not only from its ennobling and elevating tendencies upon your minds; but the action of the celestial bodies, from time immerno rial, have been supposed to exert an in?uence in the production of epidemical diseases. Comets were once looked on as harbin gers of war and pestilence, and Meteors were set down as maga zines fraught with disease and death. Natural History is one of the most pleasing, as Well as important, studies, and one that should never be neglected by the Student of Medicine. Man, the head of the Animal Creation, should claim that share of attention, which his position demands. He should be studied, not alone as he exists at the present time, but as he lived in ages long since past.
