Believing the best to be the cheapest, they sent to one of the nurseries for three hundred and fifty budded trees. They took especial pains in setting them out, and in due time had as thrifty a young grove as one could wish to see. The trees cost them all the money they had earned and most of what they had laid aside; but when they looked at their beautiful young grove, they were more than satisfied. Before the end of the year the proposed railroad was built, and its advent made a tremendous rise in the value of land. The boys had had many excellent offers for their land before, but invariably declined to consider them. As the depot had been built very near them, they knew their place must advance rapidly. However, shortly after the erection of the depot, they received an offer of seven thousand dollars for the unimproved ten acres, and...
