Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Mastery of Power: The Secret of Attainment Let man have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. - Gen. 1:26. Possibly many of us are acquainted with the juvenile rhymes that tell of the little boy who wishes he were a sea pirate, an Indian, a soldier, prize fighter, or some one else equally forceful and terrible. About three years ago I brought home from England a superbly illustrated book of the Lives of the Saints to my own small son. It awakened in him but a languid interest. He listened to the reading of one of the biographies but after that the book was put on the shelf. On the other hand his well worn copy of Grimm s Household Tales is very greatly treasured. He delights to hear, day after day, of the wonderful exploits of certain magicians and fairies, for their marvellous power over wind and water and land and hidden treasures fascinates his imagination. Watch a number of boys at play. At first it is an imitation of horse and driver; each boy wishes to be the driver, to tame the wild horse, or it is the coming of the fire engines or by and by the lurking red men with their blood-curdling war whoops, or the battle between the Knights of Chivalry or a mimic war between Spaniard and American.
