The writers of the York U3A have pleasure in presenting their third volume of delightful, funny and moving stories from past times. The previous volumes have been welcomed with positive acclaim and readers are excitedly awaiting this new anthology. Once again, the authors rewind the readers into another world, full of colourful characters, places that we can no longer see on our landscapes and events that will enthrall us as we gaze into the ways of those who lived before us. From families facing the upheaval of the Enclosure Acts to a small girl living her first memories in a country home; from a century of change for a family and business in Doncaster to life in the Big House in pre-war Britain. Here are thirteen quite different stories to enthrall the reader. This long-awaited volume will bring a pleasurable reading experience on all occasions.
