Nimble Books. Paperback. Condition: New. 106 pages. Dimensions: 9.9in. x 6.9in. x 0.3in. Alan Macfarlane writes of F. W. Maitland: When we consider that some five thousand pages of detailed findings, written about a hundred years ago, have been modified in only a few minor emphases and one or two facts, and that the bulk of Maitland's edifice still stands, we can begin to understand why he has an almost god-like status among historians who know the problems he faced and the elegance of his solutions. The great legal historian Vinogradoff disagreed with Maitland on some specific points, but shortly after Maitland's death wrote of him as the greatest legal historian of the law of England and as a man to whom lawyers, historians and sociologists were equally indebted: lawyers because of his subject, historians because of his methods, sociologists because of his results. J. H. Hexter referred to Maitland as the greatest of English historians in his book on modern historians. R. G. Collingwood referred to the best historians, like Mommsen and Maitland. Denys Hay in his overview of western historiography describes him as a giant who, with Marc Bloch, is one of the two greatest historians of recent times. Bloch himself referred to the great English jurist Maitland. The medievalist Helen Cam ends her preface to his Selected Essays by concluding fifty years after his death. Let us say with Powicke, Maitland is one of the immortals and leave it at that. G. O. Sayles wrote that in the range of his interests, the fineness of his intellect, and the considerable bulk of what he wrote in barely twenty-five years, Maitland has no match among English historians. Driven on by the sense of an impending early death Maitland tried to solve within a period of some twenty years the...
