The soil of human vice appears--Ere passion hath disturbd thy cheek, And prompted what thou darst not speak; Ere that pale lip is blanchd with care. Or from those eyes shoot fierce despair, Would I could meet thine untund ear, And greet it with a fathers prayr. But little reckst thou, O my child! Of travail on lifes thorny wild, Of all the dangers, all the woes, Each loitring footstep which enclose--Ah! little reckst thou of the scene So darkly wrought, that speeds between The little all we here can find And the dark mystic sphere behind! Little reckst thou, my earliest born! Of clouds that gather round thy morn, Of arts to lure thy soul astray, Of snares that intersect thy way, Of secret foes, of friends untrue, Of fiends who stab the heart they woe--Little thou reckst of this sad store! Would thou mightst never reckon more! But thou wilt burst this transient sleep, And thou wilt wake, my babe, to weep--The tenant of a frail abode, Thy tears must flow, as mine have flowd--Beguile by follies, evry day, Sorrow must wash thy faults away; And thou mayst wake perchance to prove The pang of unrequited love. Unconscious babe! tho on that brow No half-fledgd misry nestles now--Scarce round those placid lips a smile Maternal fondness shall beguile, Ere the moist footsteps of a tear Shall plant their dewy traces there, And prematurely pave the way For sorrows of a ripper day. Oh!...
