By Wend Von Kalnein

Yale University Press, United States, 1995. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. The eighteenth century was a time of supreme achievement in French architecture. The buildings of the period are distinguished by restraint and proportion, grace and practicality - qualities that influenced architecture across Europe. This handsome book surveys developments from the final years of Louis XIV and the lasting influence of Jules-Hardouin Mansart to the dramatic fantasies of Boullée. It analyses not only the buildings, but also their interiors, and the contemporary theoretical literature.
