He continued in the ministry until the breaking out of the war, when he received the appointment as Chaplain to the 43d regiment Illinois Volunteers. He remained in the service for nearly two years. He afterward finished his studies in medicine and entered the Missouri Medical College, (Homeopathic,) and graduated from that institution in 1865. He afterward practiced his profession in Peru, Illinois, Chicago and Muscutab, and in 1870, came to Nashville, and has continued the practice here ever since. In 1874, he in connection with W. S. Forman, editor and proprietor of the NashviUe Democrat, confmenced the publication of the Zeitung, a German newspaper of which Mr. Schmidt was editor. They continued the publication for two years, when his brother, Erail Schmidt, established the Volfblat, at which time Dr. Schmidt severed his connection with the Zeitung, and engaged with his brother as...
