The eggs are usually four or five in number, of a pale greenish white, mottled with light brown and grey, with a few spots and streaks of dark brown. They have been found of a beautiful flesh or salmon-colour: the size varies considerably. The Blackcap she huilids in the rasperry bush, And a snug little nest she makes; And sweetly her mate singeth near her--hush! To those musical trills and shakes! He has caught from the Blackbird...
