Frigate Brandywine, at Sea, October 31, 1825.) DEAR GEORGE, I Have despatched the nobles of the ship; and will now deal, as briefly as possible, with the rest. The marines form a class, distinct from all others; associating little with the rest, and from their character, as well as duties, never high in favor with the tar. In port, a sergeants guard, consisting of thirteen, is always kept, during the day, in uniform, on the quarter deck: the remainder take turns at guard in different parts of the ship; two at the gangways; perhaps, one at the bow; one at the cabin door; one at the water cistern; one over the prisoners, and one at the store rooms. At sea, the lower guards are the same: the rest pull and haul on the spar deck, and are, there, subject to the same...
