

Hippie Diary A Journey in My Youth Hippie trilogy Volume 3

By Stephen M Catchpole MA

Historian Stephen Michael Catchpole. Paperback. Condition: New. 100 pages. Dimensions: 8.9in. x 5.9in. x 0.4in. This diary is a historical document of a journey I took with Barry Wood 40 years ago. It contains the exact record that was kept by me when I was 17 years old. In 1972 we left Britain and went on a Road Trip through Europe that lasted seven months. The actual diary is supplemented with footnotes and letters along with some comments from friends from that time. I do not remember my motivation for writing it. Memory and time are strange partners. Time while contributing to the other by creating new memories as it passes, also erases some of the existing ones in the process. One of the reasons history is so interesting is that it makes you question why people write some things at certain times. The written records of certain events have always helped us to understand them. These notes will hopefully give you a snapshot of that time and illustrate the zeitgeist that motivated young people to go On the Road. It is strange how the memories of some of the people whose paths you cross during your life's journey stay with...

Reviews

Absolutely essential read publication. It absolutely was written very completely and valuable. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
