Hymns Ancient & Modern Ltd, 2009. Book Condition: New. Brand New, Unread Copy in Perfect Condition. A+ Customer Service! Summary: 'No one can live a moral life in today's world without asking difficult questions about how we should treat the non-human animals with which we play, which we eat or cultivate, or whose habitats we destroy. This is an timely and invaluable guide to approaching these questions from a distinctively theological perspective. The editors and contributors to this volume have done the Christian community an enormous service in tracking a range of traditional approaches while also opening up some radical and deeply imaginative ways of thinking theologically about our fellow creatures. These both illumine our own self-understanding as human beings and make an important contribution to how we conceive of the common good.' Oliver Davies, Professor of Christian Doctrine, King's College London 'Amidst a sweeping ground swell of posthumanist and other interdisciplinary challenges to the comfortable boundaries we humans have constructed between nature and culture, nature and technology, the human and the machine, also the rigid barriers erected between genders, species, humans and God, comes this truly groundbreaking book, a book with many voices that responsibly deconstructs the age-old boundary between humans and animals. Into a field almost completely devoid of specific theological contributions now steps this outstanding anthology. In spite of its exciting and diverse group of authors the book quickly acquires its clear identity as a 'theology of God's creatures,' and in focusing on the human/animal relationship as well as the ambiguous role of animals in Christian theology, this anthology presents a radical revisioning of theological anthropology. And in developing a philosophy and theology for non-human animals the authors go beyond the ethical challenge and present the reader with a theological recognition of animal rights, based on a...
