East Beach Press. Paperback. Condition: New. 224 pages. Dimensions: 7.8in. x 5.0in. x 0.6in. A humorous and penetrating look at how we live and how we die. This is a quick read that leaves a lasting impression. Only in America do you hear people say, If I die. . . As if there were another option. As if we could choose between dying and, say, a trip to Hawaii. This book takes you on a light-hearted journey across the great divide between if and when. Its something we all have to do sooner or later, but nobody seems to want to talk about. Shakespeare wrote, All the worlds a stage. If that is true, most of the players are reading a script without an ending. We may act as if the show goes on forever, but the climax always comes in the final act. One way or another, all of the fascinating characters who wander through every stage of our lives are going to die. Americans live under the illusion that death is an option. Here is a creative and hopeful antidote to our cultural paranoia. This book invites the reader to stand in the tension of opposites. Instead of fear, expect to discover the joy of living. --Richard Groves, founder, The Anamcara Project. If you had 30 minutes to live, what would you rather be doing--flying a hang glider over the South Pacific or riding a commuter train across the Brooklyn Bridge Everyone will die someday, but once youre dead its almost always too late to get a life. You will discover: 1. Moderation is not always the best policy. 2. Its not what you know but who you are. 3. Live every day like theres no tomorrow. You have only two lives to live--the one you live, and the...
