Suzie Bear has studied hard for her social studies test. When quizzed by her Mama, she can answer every question without hesitation. But when it comes to the day of the written test, Suzie Bear s mind goes completely blank! Her paws begin to shake and she can t write a word. She fails the test miserably. A tearful, frightened and anxious Suzie Bear cannot understand why this has happened, especially when she was so well prepared. To make matters worse, another test is scheduled for next week. Fearing that the same thing may happen again, Suzie Bear reaches out for help from her family and her teacher. With their support, can Suzie Bear pass her test with flying colours? Elementary school teacher Jacqueline Cook was born in England. She now lives in Newfoundland, Canada. This is her third book in the Suzie Bear series and more are planned. As a teacher, I have encountered many students who, due to their anxiety and lack of confidence, were held back from achieving their full potential. It is hoped this book will help children learn to cope with fear. Publisher s website: /JacquelineCook.
