On its fly-sheet I inscribed the following: Dear Father, read this larger print, And if its lines you see; Whene er you kneel to humbly pray, Oh! then, remember me. And if you leave us here behind And pass to yonder shore, To see the Saviour and to greet Those loved ones gone before. Thy children then will read these lines, And love the Saviour too, That we may meet with those we love And be for aye with you. Your fond son, Glen-Allen, October, 1869. WILLIAM. DEATH. DEATH. Death is a word all mankind fear, It fills with...
