THE VASE WITH THE MANY COLOURED MARBLES: BOOK 1, EMMA BOOK 2, MARLA (PAPERBACK)

Outskirts Press, United States, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . The working title of my book is. THE VASE WITH THE MANY COLOURS. It consists of two books. BOOK 1. EMMY. BOOK 2. MARLA. BOOK 1. EMMY Emmy was born Emily Kleintjies into the Coloured community of South Africa. Her parents lived in District Six, a suburb of Cape Town. The Coloured community was discriminated against by the racial apartheid laws that became stricter with the election of Hendrik Verwoerd as Prime Minister. Emily, as a young Coloured girl, looked more like a WHITE (European) than a Coloured. Growing up, she found that she could ignore the WHITES ONLY signs on benches, restaurants and beaches around Cape Town, without anyone challenging her. As she grew older, she realised that she could not live with the racial discrimination of the country, being classified a second class citizen. She decides to challenge the apartheid system and become and live as a White. At the age of 16 years old, after many tears when she says goodbye to her family without them knowing her intentions, she moves from Cape Town to Johannesburg, where she successfully jumps the race barrier. Although she goes out with various men she meets on dates, she is continually scared to form a permanent relationship, knowing that should she have a child, the baby could give her race relationship away. However, she falls in love with a manager at the company she works for, and by accident she falls pregnant. The father, Eric, who joined the army to fight in WWII is killed at Tobruk before they marry. Her daughter, Marla when born is born with straight hair and a light skin colour that does not give Emmy s racial...
