Excerpt from A Sermon, Delivered at Salisbury, Mass; On the Death of His Excellency William Eustis, February 13, 1825: At the Request of the Officers of the 4th Regiment, 2d Brigade, 2d Division, Massachusetts Militia Man strangely loses sight of Him, who hides him! Self behind these visible appearances. He sees no evidence, and feels no need of him, while order and regularity remain. But the very constancy of nature in all her operations, irrefragably proves his existence, as the Creator and upholder of all. If we survey the planetary system, and mark the uniformity and regularity of all the heavenly bodies in their motions, we are no less surprised at their order and harmony, than when contemplating the order and succession of changes of the seasons. They both alike manifest the existence of God; and become a mirror by which he manifests himself to his creatures. both the day and night afford their testimony and the secret silent revolutions of the heavens, defy the attack of infidelity. God. As if he had spoken by an audible voice from heaven to his creatures, by all these evidences, has in the same, manifested the unchangeableness of his nature, and righteousness of his government. Nature follows her own laws. But those laws are established by infinite wisdom. In one instance alone, has She departed from that order by which she was at first regulated, and in that, by the authority of God. By all around you then, in heaven above, or on the earth beneath, and all within you, do we call on you to acknowledge his existence, who framed all things by the word of his...
