SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS: TRANSACTIONS FOR 1874 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Society of Engineers: Transactions for 1874 The first paper was read on the 3rd March by Mr. W. Fox, on the subject of Continuous Railway Brakes, and it formed a sequel to one read by the same gentleman in the previous year, in which he noticed the kind of work a brake should be expected to perform; and he described the hydraulic brake, showing also how the force necessary to stop a train varied with different conditions of weather and traffic. In the present paper the author gives the results of investigations, by which it appears that generally a train, travelling at the rate of 60 miles per hour, might be stopped within a distance of 220 yards during ordinary weather by a retarding force equal to 18 per cent. of the train's weight. Mr. Fox next described the Westinghouse brake, in which the actuating pressure is obtained from compressed air; the details of this arrangement were lucidly explained by the aid of carefully prepared diagrams. On testing this brake during its action on a train, it was found to be efficient and capable of fulfilling all the conditions prescribed as essential to the proper action of a continuous brake. The author next described Chapin's electric brake, and by the aid of diagrams explained its construction. He showed how the electro-magnetic power was obtained and applied under each carriage as a retarding influence. Experimental researches as to the amount of retarding force which this novel and ingenious brake exercised proved it to be quite sufficient for the purpose intended. Mr. Fox was of opinion that this brake would ultimately prove...
