Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from An Address to the Soldiers of the Army of the Potomac To my former Companions in Arms the survivors of the Fifth Corps, and to my fellow-soldiers of the Army of the Potomac. Comrades: The prominence which has of late been given to the case of Gen. Fitz John Porter, and the efforts put forth to secure a decision upon partisan grounds of the measure now pending before Congress for his relief, load me to address you in that friendly spirit which should ever govern the intercourse between men who have shared hardships and dangers together. We may differ in politics - we may not agree as to facts or conclusions in every respect - but there is one broad platform upon which we may all stand - the platform of justice. In this belief I have confidence that you will give heed to my words and approve of what I shall say; or if you cannot altogether approve, that you will accord to me the credit of having spoken naught but the sincere convictions of an earnest heart. Gen. Fitz John Porter, who now seeks, as he has unceasingly done in the past, reparation for a grievous wrong done him under color of law, was the first commander of the Fifth Corps. For the first two years of the late war the history of events in the field where the Army of the Potomac was contending with rebellion, was his history; and his history, I might almost say, was the history of the Union dining the same period. His loyalty, energy, and ability commended him to public notice at the very outbreak of hostilities,...
