Excerpt from McGill Outlook, Vol. 7: January 12, 1905 Quebec certainly had a large supply of the original nerve when they sent a team to play in the States, styling itself the champion team of Canada. It got properly trimmed by the New York Wanderers too, and the American papers haven't yet ceased talking about their victory over the champions of Canada. Something ought to be done to prevent weak teams from thus injuring the reputation of Canadian hockey. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
