By Arthur W Pinero

Createspace, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .From The Theater: A Monthly Review and Magazine [1884]. Mr. A. W. Pinero's latest effort in the playwriting line is, we are pleased to be able to record, a complete success. In Chancery, first produced at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, on Friday, September 19, is described on the bills as an Original Fantastic Comedy in three acts. Act i. introduces us to the hotel at Sleepleton Junction, where resides a gentleman, the victim of a railway collision, who as a result of his smash up has completely lost his memory. A card-case supplies him with a name which may or may not be his; in his difficulty, however, he catches at a straw, and makes the best of a bad bargain by allowing himself to become engaged to Patricia, the daughter of the blustering Irish landlord, to whom of course he owes a long account. This is no sooner concluded, and the engagement announced to the landlord's friends than Jolliffe-the man without a memory-reads an advertisement offering a reward of 200 for his arrest, and the first act is brought to a...
