In a commencement address before the Dental and Medical Schools of Harvard, in Boston, in 1871, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale gave the difference between a body of professional men and a body of craftsmen. He held that every diploma given in a liberal profession contained three pledges which those who received them bound themselves to maintain by accepting: a pledge to learn for all; a pledge to practice for all; and a pledge to teach freely to all. These three, - to learn for all, to practice for all, and to teach for all, - uniting as they do past, present, and future, and implying freedom, are laid as a foundation, whereby we may test the claim of dentistry...
