Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.1in. Excerpt from Brown Alumni Monthly, Vol. 80: September, 1979 Canton was not an isolated moment; the memory of it burns no more vividly than a hundred others. For the fifty-two members of the Brown Chorus, who toured the Peoples Republic for sixteen days in June and July, China was a giant tapestry that unfolded itself only in bits and pieces. One left China with a highly personal collection of brightly colored images of a country and its people that have remained mysteries for so long. Yet there was no clear view of the panorama. China forbids sixteen-day experts. It is possible to sing your way through the cities of Peking, Shenyang, Shanghai, and Canton, and still have only ghost-like fragments of a country that has been locked up tightly for much of the last thirty years. Strangely, perhaps, you can feel genuine love and friendship for the people you have met, and think very little about the other 900 million, 80 percent of whom live in the countryside far from the view of most foreign travelers.
