What would you name a dog that was born in the highlands of Eastern Germany from a German Shepherd fathered by a Bavarian Wolf? A solid white animal that grows to over 120 pounds and over three feet tall, trained to be a loyal protector as well as a fierce fighter? This story is about such a dog, his name is Snow. The story begins when Snow s owners, two nuclear scientists from the government operated Oak Ridge, Tennessee Research facility, are abducted from their mountain home. Their children flee during the invasion and become lost in the harshest mountains of Tennessee. Snow is soon enlisted as a service dog by FBI Special Agent Sean Tzu. Together they search for the children in freezing temperatures, fighting not only the elements but predators, the two-legged kind. Sean is joined with Sheriff Chase Caldwell, a savvy and talented lawman as both work feverishly to find Rosie 12 and her brother Jimmy 8, along with their parents. The story is filled with murder, treason, and corruption of the highest order all revolving around a dark and shocking government conspiracy. The suspenseful excitement is non-stop as Sean, Snow and Chase try to close in on the killers before they execute their plan to detonate a weapon of mass destruction.
