

Macular Hole (Paperback)

By Catherine Wagner

University Press of New England, United States, 2004. Paperback. Condition: New. New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Catherine Wagner s poems have elicited resounding, answering calls from several continents. These are poems of sex and identity, poems of spleen and craving, poems of grim energy and outspoken crisis. I love them. I am bored by so many of America s new bloods but this woman can write. Her neo-surreal vision and neo-dada attitude are matched by an exceptional feel for the magic of simple language - her poems organically grow down the page without effort, every line seeming right. She manages this by infusing every new image (and every repetition) with a corresponding voice posture. Very American, very urban, very modern and yet harking back to the best beat legacies. - Josephine Ebert, U.K. poetry critic. Here in the United States, Rae Armantrout has this to say: Jack Spicer s Martians are back, but now they re talking wild girl-talk. In Catherine Wagner s Miss America, public and private collide in a new way, like matter and anti-matter. This is a conflagration. That is damage talk, she says, Want to watch me/Make it. And I do. In fact, if...
