Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Leaflets From the Notebook of an Archaeological Traveler in Asia Minor There is ever a charm about the quaint unchanging Orient. The traveler soon finds that his heart has been led captive by his romantic surroundings, and the chains which hind him Lo the East become riveted all the more firmly if he deal in ancient lore, if he tread the ground for the sake of ages, seeking in the sands of time for the footprints of men that are gone long centuries ago. He may have traveled in the East before; its scenes may all be familiar, but nevertheless he is always charmed anew as the steamer approaches its destined port. Everything around him breathes of poetry and romance; the beturbaned crowd with its brilliant costumes, and the life on the wharfs, in the streets and bazars, are ever new and strange. Nature, too, is so beautiful, the air so sweet, the sun so gorgeous, not obscurely bright, but one unclouded blaze of living light. The traveler is indeed in a new world, where,...
