Many times several colours are used on a letterhead, or other printed matter, which could be eliminated without detracting from the effectiveness of the general appearance. It is important that the punching on all forms for binders be of standard size and distance apart, so that they will fit standard or stock binders. This helps to cut down the cost of special binders for different forms. Watching the Various Markets.--In buying supplies and equipment for the creamery industry, as in any other line of business, the purchasing agent should keep in close touch with the markets on the various supplies he is buying. This information can be obtained by keeping in contact with the supply manufacturers, by reading market reports in the newspapers and trade journals, and by consulting other buyers. There is no one best time in which to buy any commodity. It all depends on market conditions. In the creamery business we buy many of our supplies in the early spring, because much more butter is churned and packed during the spring and early summer than the rest of the year. Chapter XVII PURCHASING AUTOMOBILE TIRES Finding the Right Tire.--The purchasing agent who is responsible for the purchase of a large number of automobile tires should know the whole history of the materials that enter into their manufacture, and be familiar with the various methods of manufacture, and the advantages...
