Forgotten Books, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Manual for the Physiological Laboratory IT has been customary for several years to issue to the class of Practical Physiology in St. Bartholomew s Hospital papers containing a short account of the histology and chemistry of the various organs, together with the methods employed in the preparation of the tissues for the micro scope. The gradual increase in the number of these papers has induced the authors to collect and publish them, as they have found that in a large class it is almost impossible to to teach practical histology without some definite text-book as a basis. The excellent manuals of Foster and Langley, Sch afer, and Rutherford, possess the objection that they are some what too elaborate for the ordinary student, whilst they do not contain any epitome of histology - an omission which in the opinion of the authors greatly detracts from their utility. This work may therefore prove in some respects more useful to the classes of practical physiology now established in the various medical schools, than those more complete ones which have just been mentioned. Much of the histology has been taken from the works of Klein, Frey, Ranvier, Stricker, and Schafer. At some future time the Authors hope to publish an account of the chief physiological instruments based on the same plan, with the methods for employing them.
