A fellow must have something against himselfe certainly must to live down here year in and year out and never do a lick of work on a trail like this, that hes usin constant. Gettin off half a dozen times to lift the front end of your horse around a point, and then the back end theres nothin to it! Grumbling to himself and talking whimsically to the three horses stringing behind him, Dick Kincaid picked his way down the zigzag, sidling trail which led from the saddleback between two peaks of the Bitter Root Mountains into the valley which still lay far below him. Quit your crowdin, cant you, Baldy! He laid a restraining hand upon the white nose of the horse following close at his heels. Want to jam me off this ledge and send me rollin two thousand feet down onto their roof Good as Ive been to you, too! He stopped and peered over the edge of the precipice along which the faint trail ran. Looks like smoke. He nodded in satisfaction. Yes, tis smoke. Long...
